

Engine Number Location For V-8

Many parts for the Jaguar V-8 are engine-number-specific, such as timing chain tensioners. Unfortunately, Jaguar elected to place the engine number in a less-than obvious location. We hope the diagram to the right and the photo below will shed some light on the situation.

Standing at the front of the car, the engine number is located just aft and to the right of the water pump, or just to the right of the thermostat housing. The numbers are formed by a series of dots punched into the front of the engine block.
